SEPTEMBER MINING ISSUE

No Gain For War Effort By Closing Gold Mines

Nevada County and other California gold mine operators promised their operation would in no manner compete with the war industries. This promise has been carried out for the past several months but now comes Washington leaders with a suggestion that gold mines be closed so the miners would be available for work in defense mines.

Senator P. A. McCarran of Nevada cites many objections to this proposed transfer of miners from gold mines to war essential metal mines. In a letter to Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chairman, Gen. B. B. Somervell, commanding general, service of supply, and Dr. Wilbur Nelson, special assistant of the WPA, Senator McCarren states:

"The blow to the domestic economy of the 19 California mine localities which has already been caused by mine shutdowns will be augmented if the remining mines are shut down as proposed. All of these communities depend upon mines for their economic existence.

"Some months ago the gold and silver mine operators assured the war production board that they were not going to be competitive in any sense with war industries and their promise in this respect has been carried out.

"Gold and silver mine operators have in many instances made special effort to inform their men that they could get better wages in the war industries. Then mine operators have not raised wages in their mines in any attempt to compete with war industries.

"Gold and silver mine operators have assured the men who left their employ to enter war industries that their positions would be waiting for them when they came back.

"One remedy for the falling off of the production of war essential metals would be a direct subsidy to war essential metal mines to be applied especially to labor of the kind and type they need, such subsidy to be paid to labor in addition to current wages, thus to induce labor to fill its ranks with the desired number in the essential metal mining industry.

"Another remedy—and one which to my mind would go a long way toward relieving the situation—is to take the ceiling off the prices of copper, lead, zinc, and other war essential and strategic metals.

"By these two methods, the operators of metalliferous mines could themselves afford to pay wages competitive with those which have been permitted to be collected in other no less strategic war industries.

"By way of conclusion, I respectfully suggest, first, that any order closing down the mines of gold and silver in the United States would avail nothing in the way of increasing labor for mines of strategic metals and secondly, if such an order were enforceable, its principal result would be the destruction of the moral and economic life of communities in the several states without any beneficial results."

Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

The feud that Governor Olson started during his first months in office, now rises to plague him when his office is at stake; or, should we say, vanishing. Earl Warren's 2 to 1 victory in the primary election, has started a general abandonment of the Olson ship. Senator-elect Jack Tenney of Los Angeles, won his seat in the primary with this slogan.

If you are for Olson and Olsonism, don't vote for me.

Now other candidates, having pondered the primary election returns, are jettisoning anything that looks like, or smells of Olsonism. Lieutenant Governor Patterson and Senator Robert W. Kenny, make no secret of the fact that the regard Olson's name on the Democratic ticket as a liability. While at times they have been aligned with Olson, they now face the dreadul alternative of risking the displeasure of Olson followers by repudiating Olson, or by ignoring the issue of Olsonism, incur the wrath of the disillusioned ham-an'-eggers, whom Olson betrayed. Both realize they need all the votes they can muster.

Fred Houser and Wallace Ware Reublican candidate for Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General respectively, have not used Tenney's words, but nevertheless are building their campaign on the solid foundation of blasting Olson and his works. Candidates of all parties are giving the Olson derelict a wide berth. It may be only a defunct whale with a bad smell, or it may be a policical contact mine, but prudent skippers want no proximity to this bit of flotsam floating lonesomely in the political sea.

There is a lot of tobasco unloosed in the campaigns of the 33 races for the state legislature, winners of which will be determined November 3. Many of the candidates are vigorously condemning the Olson regime. Several Democrats are reported to be privately resorting to disinfectants and deodorants, without publicly condemning the man whose beckoning finger they once obeyed with alacrity. To have been a member of the economic bloc, is now equivalent in politics to the distinguished service cross in the Army. Democrats and Republican members of the legislature, belonging to the bloc were almost without exception returned to office at the primaries.

Of the 100 seats in the legislature, 67 were captured in the primary election. Twenty nine of the remaining 33 contests are in the assembly, four in the senate. There is now every indication that the legislative majority in both houses will be friendly to Earl Warren's administration when he takes office in January.

NEV. CO. SENDS TO WAR 3 PCT. OF POPULATION

Nevada County has contributed to date a total of 622 men to the armed forces of the United States, according to the records of Merle Morrison, clerk of the Nevada County Selective Service Board. This total includes 26 men who have received notices of induction and who will leave on the next call from state headquarters.

The number 622, is about 14 per cent of 4,211 men registered in this county. This registration figure, however, does not include the third registration of 20 to 21-lear-old boys, which numbered only 111, or the fifth registration, including men from 45 to 65 years of age, beyond military age.

The estimated population of the county is now about 18,000. The number of those in the armed services therefore is more than three per cent of the population.

Much heavier calls upon the county's manpower are now in prospect and these percentages are likely to show a considerable increase in the next three or four months.

TAHOE SCOUT COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT, AUBURN

Scout leaders of the Tahoe Area Council will convene tonight in Room 4, of the Placer Union High School science building at one of three yearly council meetings, according to J. R. Johnson, council president. Purpose of the meeting will be to familiarize all scout and cub leaders of council problems and program for the future, especially with the intensified job being asked by the nation for the scout movement. Council organization and its importance to effective sponsoring institution, cub pack and scout service will be stressed.

Highlight of the meeting will be the appearance of E. I. Vredenburgh assistant national director of health and safety of the national organization. He will discuss the "Health and Safety Program of Scouting", laying emphasis on the now very important emergency service program, which deals with the training of the scouts for messenger service, and other vital positions in connection with civilian defense.

All cub and scout leaders in the Tahoe area were urged to attend this meeting which starts at 7:30 p. m.

ROBERT SHETTERLY DIES

Death yesterday claimed Robert Shetterly, 74, well known farmer of the Markwell district in Nevada County. Shetterly died at the Nevada County Hospital.

The funeral rites will be held at o'clock Sunday at the Holmes Funeral Home in Grass Valley. Burial will be in the Union Cemtery. The deceased leaves his wife, Minnie Shetterly, and a son, Joseph Shetterly of Oakland.

Employment Situation Expected To Improve In County's Gold Mines

But the outlook for the winter months appear brighter.

An estimated 1,000 Nevada County men are employed at the cantonment in Yuba and Nevada Counties. When work is completed on that project soon it is expected a large proportion of those men will return to the mines to work during the winter.

Such large mines as the Idaho-Maryland, Empire and North Star are practically down two thirds of what their employment and production was before the United States entry into the war. The Idaho-Maryland Mines has an estimated 300 men employed. The Empire-Star properties payroll is estimated at 400 men.

Lava Cap production and employment maintains a near normal pace. The Lava Cap properties are in defense production. Concentrates from the Lava Cap are necessary as a flux in smelting lead at the Selby smelter so the Lava Cap has been placed on the same basis as ship yards and other defense industries as far as priorities are concerned. Employment at the Lava Cap is around the 300 figure.

Despite the shortage of labor, inability to obtain a priority for materials, etc., work continues at the Spring Hill and Anchoe-Erie Mines. Good ore was reportedly contacted at the Ancho-Erie during the past month. Fred Anderson of Nevada City is superintendent in charge of the work at the mine.

A large crew of men is employed at the Omega Mine, preparing for the resumption of hydraulicking in January. New water storage facilities are being constructed and flumes and ditches placed in condition for the reopening of operations.

Production at the Spanish Mine, where baryte is mined and trucked to Stockton, is again normal after a short period of difficulty in obtaining experienced truck drivers to transport the ore from the mine to the ore bins near the Washington junction, where the ore is then loaded into huge trcks and trailers for the journey to Stockton.

	Men	Payroll

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT DIES

Word was received in Nevada City yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. "Rusty" Mullen from their friend, Mrs. Gene Gregory, that her daughter, Miss Betty Gregory, had died suddenly yesterday morning from a heart attack. She suffered the heart attack while preparing to go to work.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gregory and daughter resided in Nevada City several years and are well known here where they made many friends. Gregory was employed in several local business houses here and also worked in the Spanish mine at Washington before going to Napa county to work in a quicksilver mine. He has gone to Pearl Hafbor since war was declared.

MINISTERS TO MEET HERE

Rev. David Ralston will be host to the members of the Placer-Nevada Methodist Ministerial Association here on October 5th. The session will be held in the Methodist Church here.

CHAMPIONSHIP AT STAKE SUNDAY

Grass Valley and Chico baseball teams will tangle at Watt Park in Grass Valley Sunday to determine which nine will battle Marysville for the championship of the Sacramento Valley League.

The game will end the regular schedule of the league. Marysville is one half game in the lead and assured of a tie with the winner of the game in Grass Valley Sunday.

Dr. Warren Allen of Oakland visited Billy Tobiassen at the Jones Hospital in Grass Valley on Monday and said that his recovery is progressing very satisfactorily.

SIXTEEN MORE IN ARMY FROM NEVADA COUNTY

A group of Nevada Countyans went to Sacramento Monday for their physical examinations for military service. Sixteen passed the army physicians and were inducted into service and given a 14 day furlough before commencing training.

Robert Paine and Dan Ungaro were in the group but they had already passed their physical examinations. Paine and Ungaro continued on to Monterey to be assigned to officers' training school.

The group inducted at Sacramento Monday included:

Harry M. McKemy, Roy J. Henderson, George G. Warlick, James W. McCallan, Harold R. Pingree, William J. Goudge, James H. Church, Lester B. Young, Joseph P. Durkin, Leland E. Geretta, Robert C. Bowers, Carl A. Morefield, Walter J. McCullough, Clifford H. Southern, Wesley J. Fuge and Elden Palmer.

JURY ACQUITS CLAUDE PRINE IN COURT HERE

A jury in the superior court here yesterday afternoon returned a verdict acquitting Claude Prine, 36, who was indicted by the Nevada County Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter for the death in Grass Valley in July of John Tersan, 62.

The jury deliberated two and one half hours before returning the not guilty verdict.

Prine had already served a 60 day county jail term for battery, a charge which was filed against him by Tersan before the latter's death. Prine had pleaded guilty to the battery count.

Tersan died ten days after an affray between the two men on July 5th. Prine admitted he struck Tersan with his open fist but said he did so only after Tersan had cursed in the presence of women and children. The quarrel developed when Tersan drove into the road leading to his cabin at a cabin court in Grass Valley and found it blocked by an automobile in which Prine and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Underwood were occupants.

Caught in the Riffles

Don Bluxome of Long John's Tavern is a skilled craftsman essential to aid the war effort. So Bluxome is leaving Nevada City at the expiration of his lease on the tavern soon and will do his part in the war program. . . . Lloyd Penrose will close his store Saturday. Lloyd plans a trip to New York soon. . . . The city council granted a raise recently to city employees, the amount of the salary boost to be paid off in defense stamps each month.

The frank reporting on the manner —or lack of it—in the fighting of the fire which burned the towns of Sweetland and French Corral as well as various buildings on the North San Juan Ridge and hundreds of acres of brush and timber land, pleased many readers, albeit some thought a group of convicts who battled side by side with residents of French Corral and vicinity to save their homes should be given public credit.

Some of the convicts fought the fire with the same fury as residents battling to save their homes and possessions.

Stories still come in from those who know that the fire loss should never have reached the proportions it did. A handful battled the flames at French Corral. A few more would have saved the hotel and other buildings. There were hundreds of fire fighters assigned to the fire.

Due to a misunderstanding on the time she was supposed to appear in federal court in Sacramento to plead to a charge of selling gold illegally, the $2,500 bail upon which Mrs. Eva Brock of Nevada City was at liberty, was forfeited Monday.

Mrs. Brock thought she was to have her hearing at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. When court convened at 10 o'clock her absence was noted and her bail was ordered foreited.

She appeared in the court later and was remanded to the custody of the United States marshal. The order forfeiting the bail, however, was set aside. Her case was reported to the probation officer on her plea of guilty.

George Trevethick, 47, also of Nevada City, pleaded guilty in the connection with the disposal of $100,000 in highgrade and asked for probation. His brother, Carl, 51, previously pleaded guilty. The reports on their probation application will be received by the federal court on October 5th.

Walter C. Fisk, United States secret service agent, testified at George Trevethick's hearing that the brothers and Mrs. Brock filed false affidavits involving the disposal of approximately 4,000 ounces of gold during the last two or three years. He said George Trevethick used most of the money secured in this manner for liquor. He said the brothers were working independently, neither knowing the other was filing false affidavits.

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

A French revolution was predicted frankly—and most boldly, in the circumstances — when Edouard Herriott and Jean Jenneney, leaders of the last parliament of the Third Republic, ventured to make public their document to Petain and Laval, declaring:

"Liberty cannot be reconquered without those convulsions which in truth it is your duty to avoid, if, without authorization of our parliament you try to draw France into war against our Allies."

The new French spirit that lies behind those words, and their fearless utterance in the teeth of France's conquerors and their puppets, was made clearer last week in Los Angeles by Henri Daimant-Berger, de Gaulle representative, when he explained that the French surrender was in large part caused by clever German propaganda to the effect that England was about to desert her and make a separate peace, and America would never enter the war.

"The magnificent fight of England, and America's unequivocal stand for world freedom, was impressed upon the betrayed French too late to recall surrender, but not too late to prepare for every sacrifice when the time comes," Daimant-Berger said. "Another French Revolution is brewing — and when it breaks, Nazi Germany will never forget it."

SIXTY MILLION WORKERS

Employment in the United States reached the all time record of 57,200,000 in July, the National Industrial Conference Board reported last week. With the demand for workers rising constantly, this indicates that the total will soon pass the 60,000,000 mark, if it has not passed it already.

With realistic logic, the board includes all men in the armed forces in the catagory of workers. For all Americans have the common task of winning the war, whether the job be at the front with a rifle, at the throttle of a locomotive, at the wheel of a farm tractor, behind a store counter, or at the lecture platform in a schoolroom.

While the figures are encouraging as they attest the mobilized might of America at war, they cast a shadow of heavy responsibility upon the American people for the post-war future. What shall become of the 60,000,000 workers when this job of fighting is finished? The peace to come must create constructive employment for them, if the peace is to be truly won. It would be cruel mockery to ask men to leave the Army of America's military victory for the ranks of a new army of the unemployed. Under the added burden of the astronomical war debt, the nation's economy could not survive another tidal wave of depression.

The problem of post-war employment and prosperity is too vast and difficult to be solved by any group of labor leaders, of any seminar of learned professors, or any organization of business men, of any group of government planners — if each works separately. Solution will require the utmost that the entire nation is capable of producing in intelligence, experience, tolerance, fairness and earnestness of purpose. Nothing less could solve the problem of those 60,000,000 workers—and it must be solved, by Americans, for Americans, in the American way.

THE FLOW OF GERMAN BLOOD

Not from the Russian high command, but from the United Press, which bases estimates on information carefully considered, comes the statement that Nazi casualties in the Russian campaign approximate 4,200,000 men dead or so seriously wounded as to be out of the war. That is a fearful toll for a nation of 80,000,000. Russia probably has had greater casualties—but Russia's population is twice Germany's. Whatever the immediate military outcome of his attack on Russia, Hitler seems destined to bleed his nation white, to weaken his forces for final defeat, as Napoleon did before him, on the cold, hostile steppes of that relentless enemy.

NEVADA CITY'S OLDEST TWINS ARE HONORED

Mrs. Adeline Curtis returned Friday from one of the happiest vacations in many years. She visited her twin sister, Mrs. Adelaide Denny of Berkeley. The two ladies were entertained extensively in honor of their 75th birthday over a period of two or three days.

They had been promised a dinner and were taken to the Claremont Hotel by their nieces. Fifteen relatives were present for the dinner. A dainty luncheon was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Trosper daughter and son in law of Mrs. Denny. Fifty were present for the occasion and pictures were taken of the group. The newly opened Golden Pheasant and the Cliff House were among other places the twins were entertained. A niece Mrs. Emma Hunter gave the dinner at the Golden Pheasant and nephews presented the twins corsages of orchids.

At the close of the two week vacation Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Trosper and Mrs. Denny accompanied Mrs. Curtis to her home in Nevada City and spent the past week. Mrs. Denny and Mrs. Curtis were the first twins born in Nevada County and are spry active women taking an interest in their homes and communities.

HARRISON RANDALL'S HUNTING EXPEDITION WAS EXCITING ONE

Many fine deer have been brought into Nevada City by local hunters since deer season opened but Harrison Randall of the P. G. & E. employees, seems to have had one of the most exciting experiences bringing in his big buck.

With two friends he hunted in the Soda Springs area and a friend there supplied them with horses and a pack mule. Harrison killed a deer and it was too large to carry up the steep mountain side. Going to camp he returned with his horse and while enroute encountered a hornets nest. The insects stung him and his horse severely, the frenzied horse bucking Harrison off. He sustained numerous bruises and scratches but managed to quiet the horse and secure the deer. Each man killed a buck before returning home.

Mrs. Pauline Marshall of Berkeley and her sister Mrs. Lucy Pothig of San Francisco who spent the week end in Nevada City returned to their homes Sunday.

LONESOME INVASIONS

News in Rhyme Over KJBS Daily at 12:30 P. M.

Written by Harley M. Leete, Jr.

Those hieroglyphics in Japanese,
Upon that Oregon bomb,
That dropped among the forest trees,
Need not jar U. S. aplomb.

We don't belittle the menace we face,
Either in East or West,
But this latest attack of the midget race,
Is like a mosquito's at best.

That lonesome little plane that flew,
From a sub to bomb our shore,
Will probably launch an epic new,
In their yellow hot-air roar.

And started a feeble flame,
Which soon was brought to a sudden stop,
—On this, the Japs build fame!

We'll probably hear on the Tokyo beams,
If we don't mind hearing trash,
That the whole United States now seems,
To cower 'neath firebombs crash.

The sub that shelled and quickly retired,
Near Santa Barbara's coast,
Gave rise to tales our state was fired—
So went the yellow boast.

The Japanese are awfully short,
Of facts to back their boasting.
So while their main campaigns abort—
False victories Japs are toasting.

If it gives them fun on these occasions,
And falsely lulls to sleep—
There's little harm in lone invasions,
While we strike Japs on the deep.

Cary Arbogast Named Member Of Supervisors Association Committee To Aid Mining

Chairman Cary Arbogast of the Nevada County Board of Supervisors is on a committee of the County Supervisors Association selected to aid the mining industry.

This committee will carry on the work of the strategic minerals surveys of California counties and cooperate with the various federal and state agencies in locating and developing minerals essential to the war effort.

The committee urged those counties containing strategic minerals to form a strategic minerals survey committee to enable the counties to cooperate more closely with the individual mine owners as well as with the association.

Chrome And Manganese In Nevada County Discussed At Grass Valley Meeting

The possibilities of developing chrome and manganese in Nevada County was discussed at a meeting of the Tri County Chrome Association in the Bret Harte Inn in Grass Valley Monday night.

The meeting was more or less of an informal gathering. President J. P. Hall of Auburn will announce later the date of the next meeting of the organization.

Chrome and manganese deposits are known to exist in Nevada County but the general expressions of those who have the property is that the price is too low to profitably develop them. The Tri County Chrome Association is endeavoring to have access roads built to operating chrome properties condition for winter use.

EXTENSIVE DEPOSIT OF MAGNESITE AT BUCK PROPERTY

An extensive deposit of magnesite has been discovered by Victor E. Buck of Orleans Flat at Snow Point. He has opened the deposit for a distance of 200 feet with a width of seven feet and the vein appears to be persistent and strong. Magnesite is being used in war work for the manufacture of magnesium used in strengthening aluminum castings, without adding greatly to their weight and for this reason is in demand for airplane construction.

Whether the deposit is extensive enough to warrant large workings is yet to be determined. Also to be considered is the cost of transportation to a plant where the ore can be treated.

Stockton Hill Mine Now Owned By Stockton Men

Property of the Stockton Hill mines, below Grass Valley, was sold recently at a trustees's sale to satisfy trust deeds executed by Stockton Hill Corporation and Stockton Hill Mine, Inc., to Phillip Cavelero and Stephen Dietrich of Stockton.

The two corporations are said to have defaulted in the payment of the amounts secured by the trust deeds.

The Stockton Hill Mine was opened several years ago and for a time enjoyed prosperity. A mill was constructed and other extensive improvements made but a continuation of the rich ore did not develop.

Among state elections throughout the country, only one other compares with California's magnificent dismissal of a crackpot, hysterical regime. That is in Georgia, where a young crusading attorney was able to defeat Governor Talmadge, whose antics in some respects were even more spectacular than those of his California political frater. Talmadge suceeded in compelling a subservient legislature to cede him fiscal and police powers which he promptly abused. The "wool-hats," poor whites of the hills, still voted for him, but there were not enough of them. Prosperity had come to the tobacco roads. Talmadge and his red suspenders were retired at the primary. Lincoln's good saying proves true both in California and Georgia.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

In the square of a little village not far from here I came on the prettiest flower garden you ever saw.

It was a lot of flowers all mixed up—hundreds of different kinds, I guess. So I asked a passerby if he could tell me about it.

Then he leans over and pulls out a couple of weeds. "We all have to help pull out the weeds too," he tells me. "That way the village has a flower garden to be proud of."

That's about as pretty an illustration of co-operation as I ever come across. But there's plenty of examples of co-operation and civic spirit these days.

We were talking just yesterday about how the brewers and the beer distributors are working together and co-operating with law enforcement authorities.

You see a lot of friendship and fine old customs have grown up around beer. But the weeds—well—they've got to be pulled out, too.

Everybody has to lend a hand. And the brewing industry is just sensible enough to recognize that . . . But what's more—they're doing something about it.

The brewers don't want their beer sold in the wrong kind of places, and so they've teamed up with the authorities in a self-regulation program to make careless beer retailers "clean up or close up," as they say.

From what I read, the plan is working out mighty successful in a number of states, and is spreadin' out into others.

From where I sit, it looks like a fine idea . . . a mighty practical example of how honest co-operation works out to the benefit of everyone—the brewers, the beer retailers, and us plain citizens that like our gardens and our pleasures—with the weeds kept out.

Word has been received from District Ranger Frank B. Delaney in charge of the Downieville District that Trail Foreman Orrin Lattin and his five man trail crew have completed the Little North Fork Trail maintenance job. This trail goes from the Lavezzola ranch to the summit above the Gibraltar Mine near Sunnyside Meadows. Seven miles of this work was maintained by a special experimental trail builder tractor through steep timbered canyon country and the remaining three miles toward the top of the summit was done by hand labor. This trail, according to District Ranger Delaney is one of the finest trails in the Downieville district and will give added accessibility to the Rattlesnake Peak, Gibraltar Mine and Sunnyside Meadows country.

Army Camp Is Ready For Dedication

Camp Beale, the army's newest training center on the Pacific Coast, is nearing completion and will be ready for formal dedication sometime in October.

Already troops are arriving at the cantonment. They are the experienced officers and men in training cadre who will form the nucleus about which the 13th Armored Division will be built.

Brigadier General John B. Wogan is in command of the division which is to be created at Camp Beale from raw recruits. Tank corps, armored infantry, engineers, medical, supply, and maintenance troops will be trained here.

Colonel A. D. Cowley, formerly commandant at Camp Haan in Southern California, heads the administrative staff at the huge training center. He has been at Camp Beale since shortly after the start of construction.

Construction of the camp got under way in April, with the United States Army Engineers in charge. The enormous job of constructing buildings, streets, sewer lines, power lines and grading practice fields, gun ranges and so forth is almost completed, less than six months after contracts were let.

Original contracts called for $25,000,000 in construction but additional contracts have been let since that time.

The first unit in the cantonment to be completed was the camp hospital with provision for beds, labratories, surgeries, treatment rooms and all other divisions of a modern hospital. Its staff of physicians, surgeons, specialists, dentists, technicians, and nurses constitute a small army in itself.

Seven thousand men worked at Camp Beale during the peak of construction that saw a city of new buildings arise in less than six months.

Barracks, huge food warehouses and cold storage plants, a bakery, mess halls, chapels, theatres, a field house with a seating capacity of 4,000, laundry, motor repair shops, fire stations, power houses, post exchanges and railroad sidings are sprawled over ground where cattle ranged just a short time ago.

This military city, destined to become a great army training center, is named in memory of Brigadier General Edward Fitzgerald Beale, who graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis as a naval officer and won fame in California as a soldier in the years immediately before and after California's admission as a state.

Colonel Cowley, as commandant of Camp Beale, has the responsibility of organizing and supervising the huge troop training center.

The enormous mass of detail involved in housing, feeding, clothing, entertaining and providing for the general well being of every individual in the camp, pass through his hands.

Colonel Cowley, with a record of thirty four years in the United States Army, is a veteran of Philippine action and the World War. He was commandant at Camp Haan in Southern California during the establishment and organization of that army center and was transferred to Camp Beale.

Brigadier General John B. Wogan, commander of the 13th Armored Division which will be formed and trained at Camp Beale, as a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and a veteran of the World War.

He has been with the armored forces since their organization was ordered in 1940, serving as chief of staff of the 5th Armored Division when it was organized and trained at Ft. Knox, Ky. He was raised to the rank of brigadier general January 14th of this year and was transferred to the 2nd Armored Division.

Brigadier General Wogan has brought to Camp Beale a group of officers and men experienced in armored warfare about whom he will build the 13th Armored Division.

Colonel Harris, in command of the hospital at Camp Beale, was practising in San Francisco as a physician and surgeon when he was called from the army reserve list after the outbreak of war. He was first assigned to the Presidio of San Francisco and then was transferred to Camp Cook in Southern California, coming from there to head the medical administrative corps at Camp Beale. He entered the regular army from the National Guard in 1917 and saw action in France in the World War.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS MUST AID IF NEEDED

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 21.—(UP)—Conscientious objectors are subject to call for civilian defense duty in case of an emergency or enemy action, it was revealed today by the State Council of Defense.

Self-sustaining units of 24 men each have been organized in the camps. They consist of one leader, two truck drivers, one mechanic, six first aid men, four cooks and assistants, six stretcher bearers and four utility workers.

Such units can be called to assist in the work of demolition and clearance, emergency feeding and housing, elementary first aid and work with rescue units under supervision of evacuation authorities.

Local councils of defense may obtain services of the men by applying to the camp superintendent in the event of enemy action.

For emergencies such as floods or fires not resulting from attack, approval of the Selective Service headquarters in Washington, D. C. must be obtained.
